The Decemberists, Shiny

By the bumper cars In the pretty twining light I may have gone too far I may have gone too much, too long. I'm a dull and witless boy

In the after-bars Think I was sullied by a dream In the killing jar you and me at war, at arms, all falling in embrace

Tell me why you lied, and what it is you do to keep your eyes all shiny

A tawny gypsy girl sleeping blanketed by stars Beneath the tilt-a-whirl where we were coyly caught alone all fumbling with your blouse

Tell me why you lied, and what it is you do to keep your eyes all shiny

In the rollercoaster din By the parachutes in saddle shoes you break your shin But I have never seen two eyes so shiny

And the sullen beery swine, try to tangle you in sullen beery balls of twine Have they ever seen two eyes so shiny?

The boys in denim vests Smoking cigarettes between Their bootblack fingertips sweetly tipsy by the half-light the light and the half-light
