The Do, When Was I Last Home

white and grey stones Lying lazy in the flickering water white and grey white and grey stones soft and shy like home-baked break warmest mouthful let me have just a taste when was I last home white and grey stones if I find bones along my way I might feel a little less alone not so blue but since I can still recall your features how can I complain