

The Fold, With You, I Sink

You listen in to what we have to say
But turn and walk away
Are you listening now?

You know it won't take much to change my mind
So I can turn this car around
Just the tone of your voice could make me hit the brakes
And look out for an exit
So I can turn this heart around

When you look this way, and I can say
I've been there, until recently

In you, it's another lesson learned in letting go
And I'm too scared to let you, to let you know

Could it be I'm scared to let you go?

You know it won't take much to change my mind
So I can turn this car around
Just the tone of your voice could make me hit the brakes
And look out for an exit
So I can turn this heart around

When you look this way, and I can say
I've been there, until recently

In you, it's another lesson learned in letting go
And I'm too scared to let you, to let you know

When you call me by my name
It feels like sinking sand

In you, it's another lesson learned in letting go
And I'm too scared to let you, to let you go
