

The GazzettE, Reila (wersja ang.)

Reila

Since I've met you, how many of the same wounds have I sustained? How many have supported me

I wanted you to tell only me when you were hurting instead of anyone else

The truth is burned into my eyes What are you, immobilized by silence, thinking?

I don't need a reason If only you return her to me [1]

How much more are you who has become nothing

Hurting than me who has been left behind

Although nothing had started yet

Although I still hadn't said [2] these words to you

Somewhere

Reila...

Even if I try to call out your name

This voice does not reach you...

Reila...

Open your eyes And laugh to show me that it's all a lie...

Lets go somewhere tomorrow If it's somewhere that you wish for

I'll go there no matter where it is

You were always like that As far as I can remember

You were going off to somewhere

Once again you've left me behind and ran off by yourself

I can't reach you anymore I can't reach you anymore

Although I had finally met up with you

Everything that I had held inside of me overflowed

Became tears and spilled out

Reila...

These words that I couldn't say

Reila...

I sing them to you now and here

Reila...

I love you more than anyone else

Reila...

I love you. I love you...

The room that the two of us were in Is still the way it was

I don't lock the door So that you can come home any time

I'm always waiting for you Even though I know [3]

I still can see your figure as you open the door

Tomorrow, you'll surely come home right?