

The (International) Noise Conspiracy, Let's Make

woke up and yet again something isn't right there is talk about dancing on the barricades but someone special is on my mind sure enough seems simple but what can I say there's a million things worth fighting for, like making you stay you can call me romantic, you can call me what you will but when I think about the revolution you're still in my dreams
'cause every time I look in the mirror I just want to scream how are we going to make history when you are not here with me? and baby yet again my heart's still red but it is hard having the energy to fight when everything is spinning around in my head sure enough seems simple but what can I do there's a million songs about politics, related to you
how are we going to make history when you are not here with me?
keep on keepin' on, gotta keep the dream alive keep on keepin' on, gotta make it not just try
'cause every time I look in the mirror I just want to scream
how are we going to make history when you are not here with me?
let's make history right now...
