

The Legendary Pink Dots, City Ghosts

There was a time, a time for secrets. We'd walk together in the forest, hand in hand. We'd look une
We danced for the old gods, danced for the new gods, danced for the ones we never heard about.
Tonight I feel nostalgic, feeling happy. And the powder in my pocket's crying "Eat me! Eat me! Eat
I got my crown, I got my scepter. Letters on my buttons spell Napoleon. I'll give you money, give yo
Do you think that they'll lock us away? Padded cells, packet-soup on alternate days? Maybe we sh
A shadow rests, suggests no entry. A tramp complains, collapses weeping gently. A figure smiles a
He sang in the rain, he danced in the thunder, Bowed as we bellowed from the balcony. Stepped o
The song decayed in suits of amber. Coughing as they burned in glowing embers. A priest held up
We played in the neon, bade out the paeons, slobbering in tongues to the subway gods. Just like th