

The Legendary Pink Dots, Evolution

If God was egg, if six were nine... If time was never measured, only killed in pleasure gardens of our making. If we'd never taken anything, but only given... If we could forgive, forget and rearrange the patterns. If you'd never thrown a stone or split the atom - ate the apple... if... If I'd stayed alone in shackles feeling nothing, seeing nothing in my head... If we'd shared instead of just collecting. If we'd never lived... If... If we'd ever... If we never never, never land but fly without a destination, cry without a cause, and lose ourselves for just a second at the beauty of it all... Then maybe in the next life we'd be dolphins.