

The Legion Of Doom, Lolita's Medicine

These are the words that tear you apart (So I'm sorry)
And these are the words that take you away (As two hands open doors)
And these are just words they'll tear you apart (So I'm sorry)
When no one here will say what needs to say (To steal my life away)
Climbing on the way up,
Sizing up the competition,
Waiting for the right time,
Strike a chord and change your life
It's this air and time that's bringing me home again
A lame attempt at playing the part again now
In a place you don't know
And this stance as sturdy as leaves in a storm (Don't you ever think for one-second)
The premise and motive fueling blank faces (That I will forget)
The fool in a place you don't know (The reasons that I cried)
In this place, you don't
New medicines should ease this pain.
They're the only ailment for it. All over again
New medicines should ease this pain.
They're the only ailment for it. All over again
Regret's how I spell your name
In light of what you have done
How can you not feel the same?
My love will fade with the sun
As days go by, shed a tear (This is not a product)
I hate your face more than life
I'll fake a smile for you my dear (We're not in a competition)
So turn away
These are the words that tear you apart (Waiting for the right time)
And these are the words that take you away (Strike a chord and change your life)
I'm not in the business of faking to please vain opposers
A dead legion of new, cloned followers
You're cornered in a place you don't know
In this world, you don't
New medicines should ease this pain
They're the only ailment for it. All over again
New medicines should ease this pain
They're the only ailment for it. All over again
All over again
All over again
All over again (Climbing on the way up)
All over again (Sizing up the competition)
All over
All over
(Waiting for the right time)
(Strike a chord and change your life)