

The Methadones, Million Miles

Someday when I look back I'd like to say I tried
But I know there's something vital missing in my life
It feels like a million miles away
I've searched around but have only found that my work isn't done
I keep struggling for something wondering if it will ever come
It feels like a million miles away
I start to feel so alone as I'm left here stranded on my own
I have my doubts but I'll work it out
As I look to the stars above
There's something out there meant for me
And when I find it I'll make it my love
Feels like a million miles away - but someday I'll get there