

The Mission, Never Again

It's never been like this

It's never been like this, no I've never felt like this before

And it was just around sunrise when you crept out the door

Left me ragged and worn but left me,

Left me wanting more, more, more

Let's do this all again

Let's do this all again

Let's do it all again

Let's do this all again, do it all again sometime

Sometime

And do you remember Paris in the rain?

And it looks just like Christmas

But that's come and gone again

And the wild cats roaming in among the tombs and graves

And the flickering white neon of the cross and "Jesus Saves";

And the headlights like fires and the crowds in the streets

Children dressed in rags begging at our feet

And we crawled back to our room

With our heads spinning 'round

And we just lay in the dark

And didn't dare make a sound

And a sorrow soft as whispers stole into our hearts

Lay down between us and pushed us apart

And do you remember the silence scorched with pain?

A burning regret, let's never do this again

Again

Let's never do this again
