The Ocean Blue, The Circus Animals

You, the writer, knew You, the writer cared Sold, are things once told Old, are things once bold

The diamonds and the gold They are for real Depending on the way they make you feel

We can touch the sky You, oh you and I I can count to two But we can count to three

I line them up and they stare back at me Creations in the mind and soul of me

Drift Fall Blue Call

You, the writer, knew You, the writer, cared

The diamonds and the gold They are for real Depending on the way they make you feel