

The Perishers, Best Friends

I remember it most
What it said, how it kissed me
And how it was burdened
Not like anyone else
And I remember your feet
I saw them dance to the new beat
And when I asked you to
They walked a mile in my shoes
We were best friends, more than best friends
That's too little again
I remember your hands
I heard them clap for my own chord
Felt them pull me back
As I tried to break loose
And I remember your eyes
How they saw right through me
And how tha made me feel
So sick and bored with myself
We were best friends, more than best friends
That's too little again
We were best friends, more than best friends
That's too little again
Now I know that I loved her
And I wish I had told her
But I was too slow it was already over
Yeah I was too slow it was already over
Let's do it all again
Let's do it all again
Let's do it all again
