The Power Station, Still In Your Heart

The night you met, it was a magic start
All the connections were made in your heart
Following you everywhere, you could feel her eyes A glimpse of somebody, takes you by surprise

Another place and day, now where's she gone? You can't forget her face, or things you left undone Re-run memories from the start -The time has flown All the time you've been apart And she's still in your heart

Try as you might the recollections stay Like a photographic memory of each day You can feel her by your side in an empty room -And words like 'forever', you spoke too soon

Another place and day, now where's she gone? You can't forget her face, or things you wish you'd done Re-run memories from the start -The time has flown Where's end ending and the start? Is she still in your heart?