

The Promise Drive, Divided By Zero

There's not much difference between a close friend and a girl that you once knew things will never be the same once you cross that line but you'll never know if you don't try I'll close my eyes another night without her here and I've been waiting but maybe I'm just wasting my time and it feels like she's so far away Two hundred miles between us but she's a world away I'd drive all night to hear her voice just to leave the very next day It's one of those times I look back on all those years of all the memories of me holding you dear promise you won't forget me
