The Rasmus, Dancer In The Dark

Fate lies ahead Like the sun will rise The light has been gone far too long From your eyes But you never changed, never played your part And you have erased all the fear from your heart And tried to forget

The light in your eyes keeps fading out The night's falling deeper in the heart Hiding the truth and crashing down My baby's a dancer in the dark

You've seen it all You don't mind going blind You've seen it all All the wonders of life Run to your boy, don't conceal your scars Run to your boy; let him feel your love Before it's too late

The light in your eyes keeps fading out The night's falling deeper (in) the heart Hiding the truth and crashing down My baby's a dancer in the dark

Your sight is dying, but you keep on trying to save your boy You keep on lying, but your false illusions will be destroyed You heard it calling, but you turned your face, never played your part You heard it singing, but you danced away like a falling star

Dancer in the dark Dancer in the dark Dancer in the dark