

The Raven Age, Forgive & Forget

I've taken everything you've said
I feel it underneath my skin
And heaven knows if I'll give in
For you there is no reasoning
I don't need words to make it through
Lack of action washes you away
Speak your truth it don't make it true
Can't you see the wounds still bleeding

You change your face to someone else
But now you're lying to yourself
You buried secrets of a life that you once held

Take my fear
Let it fade away with the misery
Too many times I've burned
Leaving nothing left but one more regret
Was there ever a time where we forgive and forget
You can take away everything I am if it means to start again

Another day to throw away
It's like I'm haunted by your past
So bury me in all your sin and convince yourself it was the right thing
All these demons they come from you
This hell that you've created
Look at me now and see what I'm turning into
There will be a reckoning

I know you're always right
Peace of mind is so short
One day you'll realise
It's so hard to sleep when you're always dreaming