

The Send, Blocking The Sun

This city remembers me and I'm still alone
The skyline reminds me that I don't have a home
You've been there patiently

Trust is a river
Moving, breaking
You move right through me
And I am waking
You have shown me truth through trust

The buildings are casting shadows and blocking the sun
This city is stretched for miles and I feel so small
This city remembers me and I'm still alone
The clouds all surround me turning
My heart into stone

So you know everything about me
And you still love me as I am?
I can't change everything around me
But you can make me whole!

(These buildings, this city it's killing me too quickly!
You've been there, patiently writing a different story)