

The Starting Line, Need To Love

A northbound train on a Saturday
Here I come New York City
Been deep in thought on little sleep
Distance took my love away

Do you need to love
Do you need to love someone

I stare at strangers subtly
Reading and softly speaking when Princeton boards one sits by me
Sir can I ask you something

Do you need to love
do you need to love someone

Do you need someone sometimes
When there is no one to love you back
All the time when you're in need
And so desperate to fall asleep
Ain't it wild oh aren't you tired
Isn't it making you lost your mind
When do you need to love

Do you need to love
Do you need to love
Do you need to love someone
