

The Starting Line, Selected Attention

You make quite a life for your self,
One better then you dreamt and it's weighing down,
The side of your mouth, to an appearing frown,
Theres more to it, than it might sound

Sharpen your over acting skills to cut through the tension,
Mark your words with confidence, selective attention

Try and steady your self, by with one hand down,
Loosing balance,
Take a look at your home town you're a different person now,
Only one who hasn't changed, only one who stayed the same.

Sharpen your over acting skills to cut through the tension,
Mark your words with confidence, selective attention

Make it a point to appreciate the life you lead,
Don't rush the day you'll wish they stayed for one year later,

It's a tragic case of bad taste, but its all concerning you,
Who truly can appreciate the mess you made. (x 2)
