The Tallest Man On Earth, Into The Stream

I've set the rain to be cold and hard I've set the sun to be bright and sharp To wake you up from your hollow dream I'll shake your bed with a thunder strike from my hand Lets come all steal we will lie and cheat and turn around all their limit signs and redirect this this great old boring road into the depths of a lions mouth Just to see if theres something we believe Our dog dog will drink Till the oceans gone And he will pull Till the collar breaks And everyone That he will run down Will see his limbs as they grow and bleed But we'l see if theres something they believe Lets say goodbye to the weather girl just let her die when we killed her sound and when the screen is all dark and charged the limousine will be parked outside in the street for us to throw into the stream