

The Verve Pipe, I've Suffered A Head Injury vanilla ice man cometh, goeth sampling, dealing, music stolen to pre-pubescent girls appealing re-mix record contract sealing borrowed lyrics sung with feeling slumping record sales are healing concert hall promoters kneeling keeping grateful deadheads relling quite suppressed yet quite revealing influence is far from stealing i've suffered a head i've suffered a head injury

i've suffered a head i've suffered a head injury techno-pop kids, stardom's rockets money in their label's pocket unrelentless, thoughtless selling busting charts, atop they're dwelling lacking substance story telling lost the message in this yelling robbing fortunes from the willing endless posing, mindless chilling plastic icing airtime filling instigating art-rock killing

(repeat chorus)