

The Waifs, People Who Think They Can

People who think they can

People who think they can

I want to be just like those who think they can

I want to be

Not so far away

From where I planned to be by now

Time has a bad habit from flying

I was sleeping when it passed me by

I was dreaming of what I would wear when I go there.

It's not easy being green in a world you have to tread on other people just to find a place to put you

Its not required that you sing write or play you just wear the tightest one and smile in that certain way and think you can

People who think they can

I want to be just like those who think they can

I want to be

Not so far away from where I planned to be

Good things come to those who wait

I'm going to lift my head and keep my back up straight

And when it matters most and I can't be found

You just climb to the top and you will find hanging around with people who think they can

People who think they can

I want to be just like those who think they can

I want to be
