The White Stripes, Look Me Over Closely

Look me over closely
Tell me what you see
The lady likes to look her best
Before she pours the tea
You see a diamond-studded gown
That makes the evening sun go down

Oh, look me over closely Tell me what you find But don't be over anxious I'm not the marrying kind

I'm a port in a storm Your harbor where it's warm In my arms you will hide From the great big world outside

Oh, but when you come and see me Don't try to change my ways You'll have a part within my heart And there you'll always stay

There's room for all Not for all But don't blame me If you fall

So look me over closely And then make up your mind But darling, please remember this I'm holding you before we kiss

So look me over closely Because I may be the marrying kind Oh, well I may be the marrying kind Oh, well I may be the marrying kind, oh
