The Who, They Are All In Love

Where do you walk on sunny times When the rivers gleam and the buildings shine How do you feel goin' up hallowed halls And the summer clothes brighten gloomy halls

And they're all in love And they're all in love

Where do you fit in zzzzip magazine Where the past is the hero and the present a queen Just tell me right now where do you fit in With mud in your eye and a passion for gin

And they're all in love And they're all in love

Hey, goodbye all you punks Stay young and stay high Hand me my checkbook And I'll crawl out to die

But like a woman in childbirth Grown ugly in a flash I'm seen magic and fame Now I'm recycling trash

And they're all in love And they're all in love And they're all in love And they're all in love
