The Wilkinsons, Hypothetically

(Andrew M. Gold/Gary Burr)

Let's just say it's raining And you come in where it's dry And we strike a conversation While the storm is rolling by Do you think that you Could fall in love with me Hypothetically

We may be somewhere walking And I try to steal a kiss Would you recognize the moment For the magic that it is Could you imagine just how sweet That kiss could be Hypothetically

Am I dreamin'... dreamin' Do the decent thing and let me know But if you believe in fate Why should we speculate Let's go ahead and carve this thing in stone

We're standing in a garden And we watch our children play And the love we've shared between us Has grown stronger everyday Do you think that that's a possibility Hypothetically
