

There For Tomorrow, Addiction and Her Name

You try to move on but still youre perfecting failure
Theres always something in your way
Was it the guilt in you that pushed me to improve?
I know youve always had the choice to hear
You gave it all up when you broke the thought
Of keeping away the things you bought
When you took common sense so serious
This time around youre coming closer
Youre never coming back until you know its over
Wont you take it away from me?
Just take it all
Cause you never know youre leaving until its over
And its not that its too hard to try to turn your eyes and drive the pain away
Its how much easier it is to let it stay
Once again its on the tip my tongue
Dont you wish it was done?
Im afraid were only at the start
You knew that this is how things are
Theres always something in your way
