

This Is A Standoff, Underwater

Back where we want to be back where we sit and fucking stare down to each other
Never longing, no releasing, letting go so distant and underwhelmed
I kinda like these moments when we cared for one another
But I guess those days aren't relevant I know
Just when I looked up to the sky past the horizon
You pulled me back down underwater it's that time I knew you'd never let me go
I'd scream forever but that sound's for you and I and those people underwater
Just embracing that they're never letting go
Up top cause I'm outta here
But that's not envisioning the desperate invasion that we put upon ourselves
That we don't see you ask me for better ways but you don't care what I'm saying
All I see is mesmerizing, never looking past our present time
Just when I looked up to the sky past the horizon
You pulled me back down underwater
It's that time I knew you'd never let me go
I'd scream forever but that sound's for you and I
And all those people underwater just embracing that they're never letting go
