

Tim Finn, Always Never Now

Once he thought it was forever
but it's always never now
It was the best decision that he ever made Now he's living with the consequences he was still a bit green like a sheep in a ballroom
She had the devil in her
He couldn't stop himself experimenting in secret Fire was a constant theme Now he's glad that it's over
And the horrible feelings gone away Nothing prepares you He said "I'd do it all again just to be where I am"
Once he thought it was forever
but it's always never now Once he thought it would last forever
but it's always never now
And it seems so long ago now when he didn't have the peace in himself Two overlapping circles but you can't find the centre in somebody else And the hardest of hearts couldn't fail to weep
Now he's on his way
Throw him a line as he walks in his sleep
Now he's on his way
Like the scales on a fish They flash and flicker in the sea but they're dull in the heat of the sun When his back was to the wall in a dirty bar in London
He didn't care about the Beatles
She would be angry & frightened
He would be hopeless & guilty
They had to discover that country for themselves He went through life always looking to turn it around The only way he can work it is from the inside making things happen from within Once he thought it was forever
