To/Die/For, Silence Tells More

She's by the window alone Silently crying Mourning the love that is gone Desperately denying Tears run down her face Like the rain Been crying now for days Plaintive need to let go I tried to tell you something more But my silence tells you more I don't love you anymore Her blood runs down the drain Like a river Gave in to the pain Strongest of emotions She realize the other side - no need to cry It's all behind the frost tears that tear his eye... Silence tells more...