

Tom Waits, Martin Goes And Does Where It's At

MM: Hey buddy, excuse me!

TW: Yeah yeah...

MM: Can I get you over here for a second? I have...

TW: Hold your horses, man. I'm busier than a set of jumper cables at a Puerto Rican wedding, man.

WAITRESS: I need a Mai Tai, a Brandy Alexander and a draught, light.

TW: Yeah yeah yeah...

MM: I could use another one though.

I don't usually do this.

It's just that...

I'm in the music business.

You ever get anybody in here from...

TW: Yeah well.

Things are tough all over, man.

What else is new?

MM: Yeah...

Today my company made me do a disco record.

I mean, it's just...

As I said, I don't usually do this.

I'd really like another one, if that's all right.

You don't mind pennies, do you?

TW: Oh, we can always use pennies.

MM: Oh, fantastic.

Wait... (the sound of a shitload of pennies being thrown on the counter)

MM: I think I eh... I think I got enough there for a double.

TW: I think you got enough there for a funeral.
