

Toni Childs, Predator

walking down the road I feel so low, low, low and I'm feeling like I don't know life I don't know, know, know there's something in my head something haunting me something that I'd rather say goodbye, goodbye

it's another deception it's a voice that's being cruel it's the predator deep inside you meet a bluebeard on the road he's saying hello, hello and he shakes you by the hand he says you're gonna blow man you're gonna blow he's a clever person my dear he's a clever one to fear he's the one that says don't open up that door it's a monster, i can tell you it's someone to be scared of

he's coming for you
he's coming for you now
he, he sounds a little scary as he whispers, he tells you and you frown you're losing, losing your ground you want to, move him out deny he's there but you can't let out that he's in your head it's the predator it's the predator who lives inside your head it's the predator inside you it's remarkable disguise--you it's the mask you won't admit inside your head walk with the man at night he says he don't know, know, know and he's fucking with your head you don't know, know, know it's radio k-fuck it's coming in loud and clear but the signals crossed you can't shut it off and it knows no fear

it's a monster
I can tell you

it's not the sharks outside you it's not living in the dark it's what lurks inside your mind that it sparks
