

Too Bad Eugene, Everybody's Gone

where'd everybody go?
the distance between always seems to grow and it seems like everybody's gone but not me, i'm still around and nothing could take me from this town you just had to move on do you remember senior year when we faced the world, tall with no fear? well i still remember you but memories are all i have in view and i haven't seen you in so long and now you're gone

and i feel like the world is taking off
and now you're gone
i haven't seen you in so long and now you're gone what's a move? what's a vacation is it too much to hope for a reunion?

and would we be the only ones that went?
i wonder what you'd drive up in a rolls-royce or a beat up station wagon to fit your fourteen kids? i think back to when we were young but those songs have already been sung well, you're always on my mind 'cause that's the only place i seem to find you and i've missed you for so long

and now you're gone
and i feel like the world is taking off
and now you're gone
i haven't seen you in so long and now you're gone

well, i try to close my eyes and see you in my mind but if you're not there, i know it's such a waste of time but it's just my way of trying to hold on