

Too Bad Eugene, Theological

has it occurred to you that this is all you've ever had a world created by perception?
have you yet thought it through the things you see as good and bad are nothing more than learned projections, recollections from your childhood

we're thinking so high
and we're guessing the answers are somewhere we can find as the seasons go by
and asking brings more questions
questions bring more light is all we ever do determined by what You've foreseen?

are we bound by predestination? are You becoming who we've all assumed You've always been?
are You bound by Your own creation or the nations of philosophers?

as the seasons go by

as we look up and wonder as we see Jesus, God's reply we find the answers in the Son but that don't end the questions it gives them meaning, gives them light i won't stop asking till the kingdom has come a question's all we've ever had...
