

Tracy Byrd, Out Of Control Raging Fire

(Melba Montgomery/Kostas)

Today an old heartache came calling
An old flame I thought died out like some falling star
Instead it's rekindling some memories
That may start an out of control raging fire

That look in your eyes brings back memories
You still have that same smile that once won my heart
The bittersweet feelings still linger
That once fueled our out of control raging fire

An out of control raging fire
Pain has no memory when you burn with desire
The flames grow higher and higher

Till we've reached an out of control raging fire

Inside us the passion is burning
It's too late to stop what we've started tonight
How can we resist this temptation
To restart an out of control raging fire

An out of control raging fire
Pain has no memory when you burn with desire
The flames grow higher and higher
Till we've reached an out of control raging fire

Yes we've reached an out of control raging fire