

Tracy Lawrence, Somewhere Between The Moon

Sittin' here in Fort Worth and for what it's worth it might as well be Timbuktu

Girl I'm missing you

The further I go in life the more I realize I'm no closer to that elusive moon

I can't put out your fire cause everywhere I turn there's a memory to burn

Somewhere between the moon and you

I fought the chill of the cold hard truth

That rainbow I've been chasin' left my whole world blue

I lost my dreams somewhere between the moon and you

I still see you smile and it haunts me every mile along this winding road

That I walk alone

They say that time should ease the pain but in my heart a bitter rain still lingers on

Could I have been so wrong

I climbed that ladder thinking' I could never fall until I lost it all

Somewhere between the moon and you...

[steel]

That rainbow I was chasin'...
