

Troy Cassar-Daley, Time To Say Goodbye

There ain't no winner when love falls down
When precious memories are scattered all around
You've tried so hard but to no avail
No one likes to fail

When you've exhausted every avenue
And the wounds don't heal like they used to
Then you reach the point of no return
You've gotta stand and watch those bridges burn

Cause I won't back down and I won't give in
And we seem to fight over such little things
Now the heart of the matter can sometimes make you cry
When it's too late to say you're sorry
It's time to say goodbye

I followed you with undying faith
And today I followed you to our old front gate
I'm lost for words as I walk away
I guess there's nothing left to say

What a way to end
A broken down love
That we thought would mend

Because you won't back down and you won't give in
And we seem to fight over such little things
Now the heart of the matter can sometimes make you cry
When it's too late to say your sorry
It's time to say goodbye