Trust Company, Reflection

I feel it suffocating from the last time before but I can't see his face reaching forward as I rise off the floor cause I'm lost in this place I can feel it surround me It's breaking the skin I'm letting it in now I can feel it surround me it's all that I see the reflection is me falling faster than the first time before as I look at you now losing focus on my out the door cuase I can't make you out

I can feel it surround me it's breaking the skin I'm letting it in now I can feel it surround me it's all that I see the reflection is me it's always right here it follows me still the faceless looking back at me the darkest views come focusing through to see looking back at me looking at me looking at me