

Tyketto, Seasons

So long ago she took my hand
I heard the sound of the sea sinkin' in the sand
But we changed like the seasons I never understand

Seasons they fly, stealin', they never will say why
they've come and gone
Takin' their time, like shapes in the night
they pass alone

When I'm down, I got the midnight fireworks while singin' blues Got my walking papers, got my walking shoes Oh, babe, you know I'm comin' to you

I see your face on every stranger passes by
And I can't shake desire from my mind

Seasons they fly, stealin', they never will say why
they've come and gone
Takin' their time, like shapes in the night
they pass alone

When I find you, I'm a wild horse ride that can't be denied, no more
You can put me on a track and point me straight back home Oh, you can beg me and close the door

I see your face on every stranger passes by
And I can't shake desire from my mind

Seasons they fly, stealin', they never will say why
they've come and gone
Takin' their time, like shapes in the night
they pass alone

Now this cup is getting cold and I've read through your letter So many damn times
I know where I've got to go and I should have known better Than to waste so much time

Seasons they fly, stealin', they never will say why
they've come and gone
Takin' their time, like shapes in the night
they pass alone
