

Tyr,

"Hvrt skal t ría, Ólavur mn lofti hongur brynja tn T fer ekki at veia ta hind men t fer til tna leikalind Hvit er skjrtan, vl er hon tvigin blói verur hon av tr drigin" Ólavur snist sni móur fr
"Gud gevi ekki ganga sum mr er spad" Ungir kallar, ktir kallar, gangi upp gólv
dansi lystilig

Ólavur rur eftir bjrgunum fram
-kol og smiur vi
fann hann upp eitt lvarann t kom eitt ta lvafljó fltta hr herar dró
"Ver vlkomin Ólavur Riddararós t gakk dans og kv fyri oss"
"T tarvt ekki fltta ttt hr fyri meg eg eri ekki komin at bija teg Eg kann ekki meira hj lvum vera morgin lati eg mtt brdleyþ gera" "Hvat heldur vilt t sjev vetur liggja str ella vilt t morgin til moldar g" Hon skonti honum drykkjuhorn har fór ta eiturkorn Ólavur studdist vi sailboga
-kol og smiur vi
hann kysti t moy av ltlum huga Ungir kallar, ktir kallar, gangi upp gólv
dansi lystilig

[Translation:]

Olaf Knightrose

"Where are you going, Olaf your armour hangs in the attic You are not going to hunt for deer you are going to your mistress White is your shirt, well has it been washed It will be taken of you in blood" Olav turned away from his mother "God grant that it does not go as it has been foretold"
Young lads, happy lads, step up on the floor
dance merrily
Olaf rides along the mountains
-with coal and smith
He came upon an elven house
Out came an elven maiden Plaided hair on shoulders lay
"Be welcome Olaf Knightrose come to the dance and sing for us"
"You need not plaid your hair for me I have not come to ask for you I can no longer stay with the elves for tomorrow I will wed"
"What would you rather, lie ill for seven winters or be buried tomorrow" She filled him a drinkinghorn in it went a grain of poison Olaf leaned on the saddlebow
-with coal and smith
as he reluctantly kissed the maiden Young lads, happy lads, step up on the floor
dance merrily