

Unbekannt, Paparazzi

Paparazzi, can't make the man.
Paparazzi, can't break the man.

Next to the transit lounge
see the Paparazzi tears.
No-one came today
from Boston or Tangiers.
And in departures -- only
faceless trippers trip,
loaded with duty free
held in white knuckle grip.

Snap it up, flash away --
steal a camel for a day.
Break the story in heavy type --
the news is running late tonight.

Be-decked with Nikon necklaces hear the Paparazzi cries.
Under their noses walk
the famous in disguise.
Conspicuously huddled there but no-one stops to look.
They've got their crayons out to colour in the book.

Snap it up, flash away --
steal a camel for a day.
Break the story in heavy type --
Paparazzi won't be home tonight.

Paparazzi -- write it down.
Paparazzi -- turn it around.
Paparazzi -- take it, fake it,
break it.
'cos it's a story.

Now someone's cut the lines
communication's down.
Celebrities surround
and jab their fingers at me.
They kiss but I can't tell.
Even poor Paparazzi
must have privacy as well.
