

UnSuNg ZeRoS, Intermission

If the world should end, and we both die tonight.
I'd have no more time to say the things I might.
Had I known that this last hour would come so soon.
I'd have spent the last year speaking just to you.
And they'd be awkward all the things I would have said.
And that's the reason they have not been spoken yet.
But they mean too much to let them go unheard.
Even if I cannot really find the words.
Everyone's moving
I'm standing still

I stand frozen, stooped in headlights and I watch.
As fate rolls up near and strikes me where I'm stopped.
So I look as all I've wished for fades away.
Because fear grabbed a hold and kept me stuck in place.
But now I swear to everyone I've broken free.
And most of all to you I vow to be
The best of everything which I know that I can.
Because now I'm sure I'll always understand.
Times never frozen
I will move on