Urge Overkill, Monopoly

We're given life to live in And we're never gonna live it again Gotta lead it like a dog on a leash, yeah, But my dragon kinda's wearing thin Rolling dice with God as our witness Down avenues, utilities and towns It's survival of the richest Moving our sinful pieces 'round and 'round

It's you and me on the Monopoly board You land on the block where I got three hotels But it's not like you want me to win

It was your face that placed the blame on you And your kiss that turned to brown Your face that placed the blame on you And your face that turned me down But when the night is over and you need a friend Shame on you, You're your own Monopoly

Death is always annoying, But then nothing here is meant to last We're spending too much time on life's preparations Haven't we lived and died before in the past? I know we have

Now it's you and me on the Monopoly board You land on the block where I got three hotels Now you cheated before 'cause you know you're gonna win and you do it again

It was your face that placed the blame on you And your kiss that turned to brown Your face that placed the blame on you And your face that turned me down, But when the night is over and you need a friend Shame on you, you're your own Monopoly

'Cause when the night is over and you need a friend Shame on you, you're your own Monopoly Yes, you know you are Your own monopoly Yes, you know you are Oh Monopoly Monopoly.
