

Val Davis, Fade Your Heat

As I look deep into your eyes
I see your fear, I hear your cry
With arms held out I pull you in
I hold you close, my dearest friend
And being all that a man can be
I take your hand your safe with me
And floodgates move to let it pass
From deep within onto the grass
I will fade your heat I will keep you safe
I will fade your heat, I will not give way
I will fade your heat, there will be no harm
I will fade your heat, step here into my arms

There is no reason and without rhyme
Geysers erupt toward the sky
They come from mother, our mother earth
It is our source, it is our birth
And this, the flame, will burn us down
Without the man to bring it ground
And as you are, so to am I
To be myself, to let you cry
I will fade your heat I will keep you safe
I will fade your heat, I will not give way
I will fade your heat, there will be no harm
I will fade your heat, step here into my arms
