

Vanilla Sky, Distance, Pt. 2

Today I spent My afternoon
Sitting down in my bedroom
Trying to find with my guitar
All the confused things I want to say to you
Cause I've been thinking inside of me all day.
Maybe There's too much to say,
But I won't tell about that now
Cause I'm scared of falling down,
Falling down for something I Haven't got:
Something that I never had from you.

Just Tell Me It's true
That you feel like I do
Doesn't matter how far.
That's Why I wrote this song for you.

Three Months have been enough for me
To understand there's lot of things
That i like of you and I'm sure
There are many others, hidden, to find
That I don't even know today.

It's funny how you talk so quite
While I always scream all time.
I love the way you find a sense
For everything nonsense I say just for fun
You don't know how much it means to me.

Just Tell Me It's true
That you feel like I do
Doesn't matter how far.
That's Why I wrote this song for you.

Lucky who stands by your side
Someone I can't antagonize.
He's living all my dreams with you.
So why is He crashing them down to pieces?
Maybe He'll die in regrets, someday.

And while I'm singing here alone
I wish I could drive to your home
Just to look you into your eyes
And tell to you exactly what I'm feeling
You're all my dreaming of today, someway...

Just Tell Me It's true
That you feel like I do
Doesn't matter how far.
That's Why I wrote this song for you.