

Vanilla Sky, Fake Season

Days are getting longer spring is on its way
So why inside my heart are these walls still cold and gray
You said I was the one maybe you were wrong
And now in this moment I feel the warmth is gone
Maybe you were wrong
It's been a false romance a sad and with no sense
And now the birds are flying away with all my hopes
I want to keep the silence hearing all this taste
Of bittersweet wind that steals the leaves away
You said I was the one maybe you were wrong
And now in this moment I feel the warmth is gone
Maybe you were wrong
It's been a false romance a sad and with no sense
And now the birds are flying away with all my hopes
It's been a gray season I'll remind myself in my head
Every promise has gone we've lost everything we had
It's been a gray season I'll remind myself in my head
Every promise has gone we've lost everything we had
It's been a false romance a sad and with no sense
And now the birds are flying away with all my hopes