

Vanilla Sky, We Were The Romans

This time seems to never change
The more I give and the less I earn Five years since I moved into Rome Where an empire was born and a god died nearly alone

the city lights are the only sun I know you feel better if they tell you you're different you are unique but there's something you should know you are not enough for this city not enough for this world

If I'm not good enough just tell me who deserves to live this life alone
this life alone

This pain seems to never end
The more I love and the more it hurts Five years to make my dreams come real And just one second to erase 'em all Those empty streets were the only land I knew I felt better if they told me I was different Was I unique was there something I should know Was I enough for this city and enough for this world

If I'm not good enough just tell me who deserves to live this life alone
Well if it's not enough just tell me who deserves to walk this path alone
This life alone

This pain seems to never end
the more it hurts the less I pretend to be here to be alive still If I can't face this I wonder who ever will
The city lights are the only sun I know
I feel better now I know that I'm different

If I'm not good enough just tell me who deserves to live this life alone
Well if it's not enough just tell me who deserves to walk this path alone
Well if it's not enough