

Velvet Belly, The Conversation Stops

The conversation stops
They say he's gone too far
They say
If you don't stop
You'll end up breaking a heart
And he has seen it coming
He often meets this wall and
You've got no right at all

To cross this fragile line is like
Burning every trail of friendliness
They say it's self defence

I can't believe it
Is this as far as it goes
Afraid it might reveal a little secret
They rather talk about cars and dogs
I can't believe it

The message is clear
In the way they frown upon him
They think
No doubt, we must be right
'Cause he is only one
And we are much more

I can't believe it
Is this as far as it goes
Afraid it might reveal a little secret
They rather talk about cars and dogs
But of course I know what's going on
And I'm tired of having to fit in
And having to ignore the things I need to explore
