

Velvet Eden, Lady Maister

With her eyes covered, the little girl
Softly took back my hand in hers
To appraise men, bed manners
Every single one, I taught to her
Be quiet now! Listen well my words
You can't stay at this station anymore
You ought to have grown adult wings and flown
By now you can see quite well on your own
Naked in an ill fitting dress you cried
If only I were beautiful you sighed
A stunted worm you were, dark and deformed but...
Then there's now
Anyone's head word turn lady
Just like before you're worn
Farewell to you; the next girl soon comes
Crying out your loli-con between tears
Run away down the road you came from
And I ask of you. Do not look back
