

War of Words, Folklore

the tried to take complete control they tried to keep us locked away thought they brought silence to the world they tried to take our voice away and when all hope faded away the child cried out and we were saved we found our voices on that day took back our voices on that day
we took the war to their front door wouldn't be silenced anymore took back the rights they stole away never alone never afraid
we can't be silenced anymore we won't be silenced anymore
