

Warren Barfield, Head Held High

They say you learn from your mistakes
Well I guess I should be a genius
For all the times I've fallen on my face
Tangled in my weakness
Wishing someone would say

Keep your head held high
Don't stop believing
You are God's child
And His strength is stronger than your weakness
Keep your head held high

Well it's a crying shame
We're walking around with our secrets
So afraid of what others might think
Living safe and living defeated
Wanting someone to say

We should confess our sin
We should love
Church, it's time we begin
To build one another up

Come on
Keep your head held high
Don't stop, don't stop believing, no
You are God's child
And His strength is stronger than your weakness
Keep your head held high
Don't stop, don't stop believing
You are God's child
And His strength is stronger than your weakness
Keep your head held high
